ANDREA ROTH-MOORE UNVEILS DAZZLE CREEK STUDIO

VAIL, Colo. - Internationally-known artist, Andrea Roth-Moore today announced the debut of her Dazzle Creek Studio in Vail. The entity, which lives on the World Wide Web at www.dazzlecreekstudio.com, will allow the accomplished artist to present her work to and solicit commissions from a global audience as well as to present her new line of branded fine stationery, posters and prints.

"I am very pleased to announce the debut of Dazzle Creek Studio," Roth-Moore said. "It's not a retail storefront. Really, it's simply an updating of the Andrea Roth-Moore brand to allow presentation of my work on the Internet and to announce the addition of commissionable landscapes, murals and corporate facility art to my well established portraiture business."

For more than two decades, Andrea Roth-Moore has created images of enduring beauty. With subjects from prominent people, to resplendent places, to favorite pets, she is renowned as one of the most talented and highly regarded artists of her genre.

Beginning in her early days at Skidmore College and Yale University, continuing through her time at Disney Studios and now from her studio high in the Colorado Rockies, Andrea has garnered both individual respect and national recognition for her work and has been sought out by celebrities, Frank and Kathie Lee Gifford, Alberto Vilar, The du Pont and the Bronfman family to name a few, and locals alike.
